Highlighting the career advantages of language study and cultural proficiency

The Only Gringa in the Room:
Working Bilingually at the OAS

Julie King
Contractor, Inter-American Drug Abuse Control Commission
Organization of American States

Thursday, November 15, 2018
4:00 - 5:00 pm
Addlestone Library Room 227
205 Calhoun Street, College of Charleston

A 2013 graduate of the College of Charleston where she double majored in Latin American and Caribbean Studies and Spanish, Ms. King also earned her MA in Spanish Translation and Latin American Studies at the American University in 2015. During her time in DC, she interned twice at the U.S. Department of Justice—once in the Narcotics and Dangerous Drug Section and once in the Mexican and Central American Affairs Unit. After earning her MA, she moved to New York City where she first worked at a legal non-profit as the translator/interpreter for her team, then as a project manager at an advertising translation company. She then returned to DC where she currently works in the Inter-American Drug Abuse Control Commission of the Organization of American States.

“None of this would have been possible without the linguistic, cultural, academic, and professional tools that CofC gave me during my undergrad years.” Julie King, July 2018

Free and open to the public ~ Presentation will be in English

Co-sponsored by the Latin American and Caribbean Studies Program and the Department of Hispanic Studies
